The Irish and Swiss are cheering as Farclas breaks his duck in style

Michael O'Leary punches the air as the Farclas camp enter Cheltenham's winner's enclosure By Lee Mottershead

You know things are going well when you can bring a maiden to the JCB Triumph Hurdle without any great sense of confidence and win jumping's juvenile championship. For all connected to Farclas, things are going very well indeed. In leading home a clean sweep of the places for rampant Ireland, Farclas, second on his two previous jumps outings, took Gordon Elliott's 2018 Cheltenham Festival haul to eight, with Michael O'Leary's Gigginstown House Stud on six and rider Jack Kennedy on four.

FARCLAS won the JCB Triumph Hurdle and added another chapter to the private Cheltenham Festival duel between Gordon Elliott and Willie Mullins.

Elliott's juvenile Farclas (0-1) reversed the form of his Leopardstown defeat to Mr Adjudicator (8-1), who made his move late into the race but couldn't quite match up to the staying power of the Gigginstown-owned winner. Sayo (33-1) finished third.

Farclas and Jack Kennedy jump the last to win the JCB Triumph Hurdle

The first two home settled the best in a strongly run opener to the final day of the meeting, with Hicky Henderson's heavily backed Apple's Shakira too keen for her own good, as was Mullins' mare Stormy Ireland. The latter suffered a nasty fall at the last after she was headed, but got up appearing to be none the worse.

JCB Triumph Hurdle report: Farclas claims tops spot for Gordon Elliott

Jack Kennedy celebrates as Farclas wins the Triumph

Gordon Elliott pulled level with Willie Mullins on seven winners for the week at the Cheltenham Festival as Farclas claimed the JCB Triumph Hurdle.

Elliott drew a blank on day one of the Festival but bagged trebles on both Wednesday and Tuesday, and made the perfect start to Gold Cup Friday as the grey Farclas stormed to victory under Jack Kennedy at 9/1.

The Gigginstown-owned gelding was reversing Leopardstown form from last month with the Mullins-trained Mr Adjudicator (8/1), who filled the runner-up spot from his stable companion and 33/1 outsider Sayo.

Farclas opened his account over jumps with a gritty performance to land the JCB Triumph Hurdle at Cheltenham.

Second in both his previous starts, the grey gelding made it third time lucky as he gave trainer Gordon Elliott a seventh winner at the meeting and jockey Jack Kennedy a fourth in the ever-familiar colours of Gigginstown House Stud, who have also had a successful time this week.

Stormy Ireland made most of the running, but she was under pressure when falling at the final flight, as several horses had every chance.
